

4ELT TEACHERS' PARTICIPLE CLAUSES

Soaring over the bar, Maria moved her limbs into the shape of a frog.

Not having succeeded in her jump, he complained about her shoes.

Having had too little practice, Maria knew she was doomed to lose the competition.

Having been a member of the Hitler Jugend, Jessica couldn't break her old habits.

Soaring over the bar with ease, Maria felt her heart sink when she noticed somebody had moved the mattress.

Having let go of the pole, our heroine flew like a bat.

Being the best at bending her legs, she won the competition.

Never having overcome her fear of heights, Julia always closed her eyes while diving off the high board.

Jumping from the trampoline, she knew that she must do her best jump ever to win.

Not wanting to lose, I did my best.

Catching both her legs in her hands, she jumped into the swimming pool.

Not having eaten enough salt this week, she decided to lick her sweaty knees.

Despite having practised running for so long, he didn't realize that he was so short.

Being so close, he was also so far away!

After having had a long night, he didn't notice the obstacle.

Being careless, he forgot about his head.

Reaching the final hurdle on the last lap of the final race of his career, Gunter decided to kiss this symbolic barrier.

Having seen the hurdle, he decided not to jump over but to sneak under it.

Not winning the race, he decided to be remembered.

Taking his eye off the hurdle to wave to his Aunt Alice, Bertrand's Olympic gold-winning performance ended in disaster.

Hitting the metal bar, he lost his teeth.

Having been on court for 6 hours and having played an extraordinarily long tie-break, Marta collapsed, her last ounce of energy used up.

Swallowing her tennis ball, she felt exhausted.

Having been defeated by her opponent, she started to pray.

Having lost the match she burst into tears.

Pulling his shorts, he knew that the game was starting.

After getting 'the encouraging touch', he knew he could win the game.

Being great friends, John and Tony greeted each other in the customary manner.

Having been grabbed in the crotch by his opponent, he screamed and grimaced in pain.

Having lost, he touched me.

Not having scored a goal, he decided to punish his opponent. Never expecting it, the opponent seemed to be enjoying it.

Not having trained hard enough, he failed to win the competition

Exhausted from Saturday night, he failed in the competition.

Having carried his mum's shopping bags all his life, he cried like a baby after being defeated by a tiny barbell.

Crying like a baby, he seemed to be rather a little boy instead of a mature man.

Having noticed his ex-girlfriend in the crowd, Benny lost his concentration, with tragic results.

Feeling the weight of the bar on his back, he shrieked with pain.

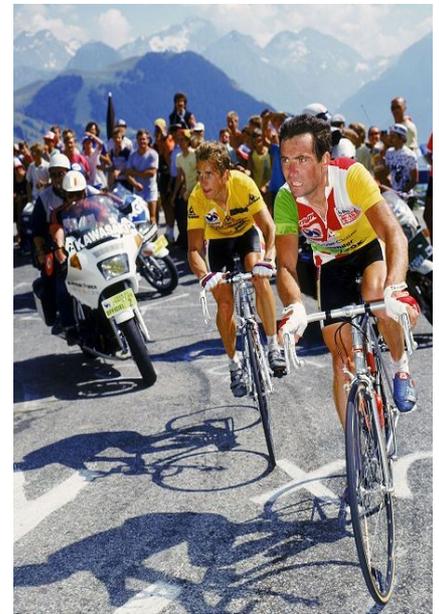

Having drunk a sip of 'water', he felt much stronger.

Having imagined that his mother-in-law was following him, he pressed more and more strongly on his bike's pedals.

Noticing the other competitors approaching on motorbikes, Jeff felt intensely irritated by such blatant cheating.

Being an experienced spectator, John was surprised his umbrella wouldn't open.

Made from the best materials, the bikes were doing very well.

Pumping up his muscles, he felt like a real superman.

Having been given a 'Superman' shirt by his grandma, Bertie felt ready to take on the world.

Not being strong in real life, he dressed up to become a super hero.

Having run 5 miles in his first school race, he felt like a winner.

Known for his outstandingly muscular physique, Mietek 'Superman' Kowalski was sure to take first place.

Noticing the leader of the pack had lost his balance, the riders closed their eyes and waited for a huge pile-up

Slipping on a snail, Mike crashed to the ground, letting out a terrifying scream as he approached the tarmac.

Despite being injured during the bike race, he decided to finish it.

Having used illegal substances, he thought he was going to finish in the top ten, until he had an unexpected crash.

Falling to the ground, he contemplated the bruising on his buttocks.

Having barged his challenger to the ground, Claude concentrated on making it look like an accident.

Being so close to the finish line, he panicked.

After having eaten a big sausage for breakfast, the fighters started to wrestle.

Not having slept enough, they didn't really feel like starting the fight.

Sitting in the audience, I realized I didn't have to go on a diet.

Having bought a new pair of briefs, Yokoshi decided to proudly present them at a parents' evening at his school.

Having washed his outfit at 90c instead of 40c, Yoshi felt extremely self-conscious as he stepped into the ring.

Rob's Language Development class, April 2014